1. Introduction

APA Northern Goldfields Interconnect Pty Ltd, an entity of the APA Group (herein referred to as APA), nears completed construction of the Northern Goldfields Interconnect (NGI) pipeline. The 580 kilometre pipeline starts near Ambania (50 km east of Geraldton) traversing through to 40km south of Leinster where it connects into the existing Goldfields Gas Pipeline.

The Project includes associated aboveground infrastructure, such as a compressor station at Ambania and other stations such as valve stations, scraper stations, at various locations along the pipeline.

The Project was referred to the WA Environmental Protection Authority (EPA) under s.45 of the Environmental Protection Act 1986 (WA) (EP Act) in January 2021, and amended through a s.43A process in September 2021. EPA approval for the Project was granted through Ministerial Statement 1184 (MS1184) on 2 February 2022.

This Fauna Management Report is submitted by APA Northern Goldfields Interconnect Pty Ltd, an entity of APA, to fulfil the requirements as per Condition 2-6 of MS1184 regarding the Northern Goldfields Interconnect (NGI) pipeline.

Condition 2-6 requires that 'The proponent shall produce and provide a report on fauna management within the pipeline corridor no later than twenty-one (21) days after the completion construction activities to the CEO. The report shall include the following:

- (1) Details of fauna inspections;*
- (2) The number and type of fauna cleared from trenches and actions taken; and*
- (3) Vertebrate fauna mortalities.*

At the time of submission of this report (mid June 2023), construction activities were continuing on site, including reinstatement works, commissioning and demobilisation activities.

2. Details of Fauna Inspections

During construction of the Project, open trenches are considered to represent the highest risk to fauna individuals, leading to mortality or injury. Where possible, vegetation clearing and trenching was minimised to avoid sensitive habitat assemblies, this included narrowing vegetation clearing footprints and replacing trenching with horizontal directional drillings under strands of Eucalypt Woodlands Threatened Ecological Communities (TECs) and Carnaby's Cockatoo potential foraging habitat.

In addition to the prescribed requirement for fauna management details in the Ministerial Conditions, APA established Performance Objectives relating to minimisation of impacts to native fauna and specific Performance Standards to define mitigations for fauna management within 20199-PL-HSE-0007 Northern Goldfields Interconnect Pipeline Construction Environmental Plan (CEP).

These mitigations included defining minimum number of fauna handlers per kilometre of open trench, requirements for minimum twice daily visual trench inspections and pre-backfill inspections, defining maximum distances between fauna refuges and egress ramp requirements.

Compliance with the CEP and Ministerial Conditions were stipulated as a contractual requirement for Contractors within key contractual documents.

The primary pipeline construction contractor developed Safe Work Method Statements for Land, Environment and Cultural Heritage Monitoring, and a held the Fauna Taking (Relocation) Licence. This licence was revised as appropriate to reflect additional fauna handlers with changing length of the open trenches used for construction of the pipeline.

Contractor fauna handlers were engaged based on their experience and training. The contractor utilised handheld digital technology to capture required data to demonstrate compliance with statutory conditions, this included;

- Fauna handler details
- Time of day for fauna inspections
- Location of fauna inspections
- Species of fauna relocated
- Location of fauna collection and relocation

The length of open trenches were traversed twice daily to identify any fauna requiring relocation outside of the open trench. Additionally, a fauna handler was embedded within lowering crew, to ensure that trenches checked for fauna prior to pipeline lowering and backfilling.

3. Summary of Audit and Inspections

APAs CEP details requirement for regular inspections and auditing of compliance. Fauna management requirements were audited on a regular basis, with an additional drill down audit undertaken on trenching fauna management soon after its commencement.

Findings were managed through corrective action registers and incident reporting system (where required). Where outcomes of audits and inspections against Ministerial Conditions for fauna management were identified as non-conformances to Ministerial Conditions, DWER/EPA were notified in accordance with the Ministerial Statement, and a detailed summary of these non-compliances has been reported to DWER/EPA as part of the Compliance Assessment Report (20199-RP-LH-0014).

Briefly, these reported non-compliances related to temporary inability to safely access the trenches via existing access tracks and roads due to significant rainfall events, and to temporary deviations from the minimum spacing of fauna refuges within the trenches.

The Contractor undertook toolbox presentations with workforce to reinforce fauna management requirements, covering use of fauna shelters, required timing of trench clearances, and the use of trench plugs and trench ramps.

There was no identified variation in fauna mortality rates associated with identified temporary non-conformances.

4. Fauna Cleared from Trenches

At its maximum, the project had up to 100km of open trenches that were managed on a twice daily basis. Up to 10 approved fauna handlers were on site to adequately manage collection, identification and release within the required timeframes each morning and evening.

During the nine months of fauna inspections, the total number of vertebrate fauna extracted from trenches was 13,358 animals. Over 140 different species of vertebrate fauna were identified.

Each species was relocated to nearest suitable habitat, to minimise risk of consequential mortality due to stress, heat, predation, etc.

Both a pareto table of vertebrate fauna, and a more detailed register of all vertebrate fauna cleared from trenches is included within the Appendices.

4.1 Threatened, Priority and Locally Significant Fauna

Several conservation significant fauna species were identified from fauna surveys or identified as having potential to occur within the Project area. These included Malleefowl, Brush-tailed Mulgara and Western Spiny-tailed Skink.

There were no Brush-tailed Mulgara (DBCA Priority 4) burrows identified during pre-clearing inspections nor individual identified during trench inspections.

Similarly, no Malleefowl (Vulnerable EPBC Act, Vulnerable BC Act) or Western Spiny-tailed Skinks (Endangered EPBC Act, Vulnerable BC Act) were recorded from the trench fauna inspections.

Other conservation significant fauna species identified in trench fauna inspections included the Long-Tailed Dunnart (DBCA Priority 4), Woma Python (DBCA Priority 1) and Gilled Slender Blue Tongue Lizard (Vulnerable, BC Act). A single specimen of each of these three species was identified and released.

Additionally, after construction works were already underway within the area, Project workers identified a new Malleefowl nest that was not present during the pre Project fauna surveys. Camera traps were installed to monitor the new nest, which was active with two Malleefowl regularly present. Despite proximity to the construction works, it was evidenced that the Malleefowl continued to be active.

Plate 8. Active Malleefowl Near KP455 – Camera Trap Capturing Courtship Behaviours

Plate 9. Malleefowl Near KP455 – Captured By Fauna Handler Working In Vicinity

5. Vertebrate Fauna Mortalities

Over the duration of the project, unfortunately 630 fauna were deceased prior to relocation. This equates to a total fauna mortality of 4.7%. This is lower than the target of 10% mortality, and lower than a similar recent project, the Eastern Goldfields Pipeline. Comparisons to similar pipeline construction projects are detailed in Table 5.1

However it is noted that the mortality rate does not differentiate between types of vertebrate fauna and can only be used as a guide. For example, data can be skewed by large numbers of frogs that may present after rainfall events. The collected data highlights that some species are more prone to mortality in trenches than others.

Examples includes the Spinifex Hopping-mouse (81 from 289 - 28.0% mortality), Sandy Inland Mouse (29 from 90 - 32.2% mortality), Kultarr (18 from 75 - 24.0% mortality), Little Long-Tailed Dunnart (24 from 78 - 30.8% mortality) and Froggatt's Stripe-Faced Dunnart (29 from 129 - 22.5% mortality). It is possible that some species have different stress responses within the trench.

Of the identified Threatened, Priority or locally significant fauna from trench inspections, the mortality rate was zero.

Further details of vertebrate fauna mortalities are included with the Appendices.

6. Recommendations and Conclusion

Although the vertebrate fauna mortality rates are lower than similar recent Western Australian pipeline construction projects, APA will continue to consider process improvements to further reduce mortality rates for future projects requiring pipeline trenching activities.

Learnings have been documented following observations, inspections and auditing of the trench fauna monitoring processes. Some of these opportunities include;

- Development of APA procedure to clearly define previously implied practices of fauna monitoring activities,
- Development of APA information technology tools and data management for third-party use to ensure improved visibility of fauna management record keeping,
- Consideration of additional data collection to support future review of multiple daily trench inspections based on quality data, and

Overall, APA believes that the implemented processes for managing fauna monitoring in trenches has been effective in mitigating fauna mortality on the project, however there is further opportunity to improve and establish best practice as an industry standard.
